It was released in China on 10 February 2017.[1] The story focuses on two young talented chefs, Gao Tian Ci (Nicholas Tse), a southern-style Chinese chef, and Paul Ahn (Jung Yong-hwa), a Michelin-starred Korean chef trained in France. Both have reasons to climb the culinary ladder—When Tian Ci was ten years old, his father, Gao Feng (Anthony Wong), left him behind with his friend, Uncle Seven (Ge You), master chef of Seven Restaurant. When asked why, Gao Feng told Tian Ci that he has no talent as a cook and he would only take him back if he can prove to be a great cook. In reality, Gao Feng chose to pursue his culinary career over being a father and made the excuse that Tian Ci can't even make a decent bowl of noodles. Because of that, Tian Ci spent twenty years training to become a great chef under Uncle Seven. On the other side, Paul made a promise to his dying father that he would become a great cook. Through that journey, he became a highly successful chef in Europe and decides to run his own restaurant in Hong Kong, Stellar. However, this brings conflict between Paul and Tian Ci. In an old area of Hong Kong, Tian Ci is now an acclaimed chef at Seven. However, the Li Management Group arrives and starts buying various properties of the old sector, including developing Stellar for Paul. The opening of Stellar proves to be a threat to Tian Ci as these two chefs find themselves fighting for the best ingredients in the markets and maintaining their clientele. Stellar's fine haute cuisine represents a form of aggressive gentrification to the neighborhood and a threat to traditional Chinese cuisine. Their rivalry begins with a challenge for the best fish and the culinary masters agreed to face each other in a culinary duel. Tian Ci makes a traditional salt-baked duck while Paul makes a foie gras sorbet. While both tied in points, the judges declare Paul the victor, as his dish presentation was superior to Tian Ci's bland plating. Although the victory should've solidified Paul's abilities as a cook, things do not go as expected. It was while celebrating their victory that the manager of Li Group tells Paul he wants to replace him with Mei You (Michelle Bai), sous chef and girlfriend, reasoning that a woman is far more appealing on media than a man. Betrayed and confused, Paul tries to defend his position as head chef, but Mei You exposes his dark secret: Paul has problems tasting certain flavors, especially saltiness. To compensate, he would utilize a notebook containing all his recipes and have others test taste for him. To make matters worse, the manager announces that he and Mei You are romantically involved. Mei You explains to Paul that she never loved him and only sided with him to surpass him. Now that she can take the title as executive chef of Stellar, she doesn't need Paul anymore. Angry that he has lost everything, Paul leaves. Tian Ci bumps into Paul drinking at an event stadium. Both share their past and troubles, and find mutual respect for each other. Both have a common goal of reaching the culinary top and decided to team up. At Seven, the Li Group wants Uncle Seven to sign away his restaurant, but Uncle Seven refuses. Paul and Tian Ci then appear, announcing their partnership. Paul reminds the manager that as the winner of the competition, he is eligible to compete at the culinary championship, not the Li Group. Surprised by that technicality, the Li Group leaves, hypocritically calling Paul a traitor but not before Paul headbutted the manager in revenge. Tian Ci trains Paul in the ways of Chinese cooking as well as developing Paul's limited palate to help create something new for the competition. In Macau, at the Studio City Casino, attending the 7th International Culinary Competition, Tian Ci and Paul use both their culinary strengths to compete against four other great chefs. Whoever wins the competition will gain the chance to face the current god of Cookery, Gao Feng Ko. In this competition, they face a French team, Indian team, a Japanese chef, and Mei You. The French team make a roasted squab dish, the Indian team make a five-flavor curry, the Japanese chef makes koi nigiri, Mei You, impliying that she is in the final stage thanks to manager's bribery because she hadn't enrolled to be in the competition, makes an oyster dish with frozen foam, and the duo create a deconstructed mapo tofu. Paul used Tian Ci's sense of taste to help him determine the flavor of the ingredients and Tian Ci relies on Paul's knowledge of molecular science and culinary artistry to create a traditional dish with a modern design. The victory goes to Paul and Tian Ci. In defeat, a shameful Mei You is unable to bring herself to look at Paul's in the eyes for having betrayed him and now once again having to live under Paul's shadow. Before the final round, Paul points out only one chef can compete against Gao Feng and he realizes Tian Ci's desire to beat Gao Feng was a very personal one. Grateful he managed to make it this far with his condition, Paul gives Tian Ci the chance to face his father. In the final competition, Tian Ci finally faces his father, and the judges allow the two to cook anything they want as long as it is considered the highest expression of cooking. While Gao Feng begins cooking, Tian Ci is distracted by his thoughts about how Seven and the people in the neighborhood mean the most to him. Gao Feng angrily splashes water at his son's face, demanding that he focus and show him something. Gao Feng creates a beautiful artistic sugar display of molten lava with a single flower on top. Tian Ci cooks something far more personal: an interpretation of the original noodle dish that Gao Feng made all those years ago before abandoning Tian Ci. Before the judges can score the dish, Tian Ci gives the bowl of noodles to Gao Feng, who is moved as he remembers what the noodles represent. Acknowledging his skills as a chef, Gao Feng calls his son brilliant before Tian Ci walks off the stage. Gao Feng continues to emotionally eat his noodles, with the victor unclear. Some time has passed and the people at Seven are getting ready for a poon choi Chinese New Year party with the neighborhood's people. The movie ends with the staff of Seven announcing: We wish you all 2017 a happy rooster year! This section is empty. You can help by adding to it. Com ótimas representações dos 2. Onde Nicholas tem um restaurante tradicional Chinês e Jung abre seu restaurante Finissimo na frente do Nicholas. E assim começa a disputa. Até o momento que Jung é traído pela sua parceira. Ai os 2 se unem para participar do Concurso que dirá quem é o maior chef da Ásia, onde o grande desafio é o pai de Nicholas é o Super Campeão. E na disputa esta o passado e presente. Quem vencerá? Filme tras várias disputas, bem produzidas, com ótima fotografia e roteiro. Vale apena assistir e se divertir. Well, the movie itself is a decent watch, the plot, acting and storyline don't have much to offer, its strength is the beautiful dishes and effects going into the cooking scenes and they are good.
